

Dear Customer,

Laerdal and Philips has previously announced the conclusion of their business relationship at the end of 2018. New distributor from January 1st, 2019 is the Vingmed-group in Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland.

Vingmed has been a distributor of Philips defibrillators to hospitals in the Nordic market since 1991, and is now also taking over Sales/Support for all the Philips defibrillator models, as well as Sales to all the current distributors in the Nordic countries.

Over the years Vingmed and Laerdal have had a seamless cooperation, and both companies together with Philips want to assure you first and foremost continued service and support of the installed base of defibrillators. There will be no break or change in the current service and support infrastructure in the shift from Laerdal to Vingmed.

This means that your current means of receiving service and support, ordering of spare parts and preventative maintenance will be maintained in the best standard.

Philips and Vingmed's main goal are to ensure a seamless transition in 2019. Philips will continue to invest heavily into the Emergency Care and Resuscitation business through research, clinical studies, and new product development.

Philips remains committed to the resuscitation business and to designing, manufacturing, and delivering every Philips defibrillator knowing that patients, their clinicians, and their families count on us.

If you need further information, do not hesitate to contact any of us.
